CAREERS, UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Your first point of contact

Established in 1892, Careers, University of Oxford (previously the Careers Service) is probably the oldest such service in the UK.

Careers aims to enable organisations to promote opportunities effectively and make contact with the most appropriate students.

We offer a wide range of services to support organisations of all sizes at any stage of the recruitment process. From working with multi-national corporations looking for a large number of new graduates this year to local start-up companies interested in recruiting research scientists, our Student and Employer Engagement Team and expert careers advisers are here to help.

Building brand recognition at the University of Oxford helps with creating awareness and familiarity for your organisation in students' minds. It helps you establish your unique identity and differentiate yourselves from your competitors.

Through Careers, you can:

Advertise your opportunities	4
Take part in careers fairs	6
Host your event in Oxford	8
Offer internships	10
Sponsor materials	12
Join the Employer Engagement Network	14
Connect with Careers	16

Advertise your opportunities

Advertising opportunities on or via our CareerConnect platform is the easiest way to access our talent pool and start building your brand at Oxford.

List jobs, internships, and other opportunities

The CareerConnect platform is exclusive to University of Oxford students, alumni and current research staff. You can use the platform to advertise your organisation's events, jobs and internship opportunities.

The vacancy database is free for all employers to use, managed by a team that monitors vacancy suitability for Oxford applicants, and provides students with the opportunity to filter opportunities and set up preferences that send relevant vacancies directly to their inbox.

Send e-mailshots to students

E-mailshots are targeted email campaigns sent by Oxford University's Careers team on behalf of employers to promote their organisations to students. These mailings typically highlight employer presentations, events, job opportunities, and competitions, helping companies raise their profile and attract potential talent.

By targeting specific student groups who are most interested in their sector, employers can effectively build awareness and strengthen their brand presence among future graduates. This approach provides a highly focused and efficient way for companies to enhance their university outreach and marketing strategy.

Using CareerConnect

Advertise vacancies

You can advertise your organisation's opportunities on the CareerConnect's vacancies database that features:

- Full-time jobs after graduation
- Part-time jobs
- Internships.

You can add keyword for specific jobs, including:

- Sector
- Location
- Opportunity type

...and much more.

For example, if you are specifically looking marketing interns near Birmingham, you can select:

- 'Internships/Work Experience' from Opportunity Type,
- 'Advertising, Marketing & Communications' from the Occupational Areas list, and
- 'England - West Midlands' from Locations.

List events

CareerConnect holds listings of career events in Oxford - and many more in the UK and abroad.

We will advertise your event on our online events calendar, free of charge, providing it does not clash with an Employer Engagement Network (EEN) event. EEN members now have exclusive access to our calendar 8 weeks early and we will not book an event in the same industry sector at the same time.

To request a date for your presentation/event please email presentations@careers.ox.ac.uk with the following information:

- The date and time of your events
- The title
- A short description
- How you would like potential attendees to register to attend
- Whether the event is in person or online
- We will also need to know which sectors the event covers if different from the sector your company is based in.

Offer internships

Hiring an intern from Oxford can be of value to any organisation. Oxford University's internship programmes provide one of the best ways for recruiters, international educational or research institutions, and alumni (national and international) to connect with our current students.

The Summer Internship Programme

The Summer Internship Programme consists of full-time work for 2-12 weeks, undertaken during the summer vacation. Internships can take place remotely or in person at the host employer's premises. These arrangements are considered carefully according to the circumstances surrounding each placement.

Organisations must submit a defined project, which creates real value for the host organisation and a valuable learning experience for the students.

Innovation Gateway have taken part in the Summer Internship Programme for many years, and each year is just as special as the last. We have worked with many students over the years and they are all passionate, enthusiastic members of the team who is it hard to say goodbye to at the end of their time with us! The value the interns bring to our company is almost impossible to quantify and we are looking forward to next year already.

INNOVATION GATEWAY, OXFORD

The Micro-Internship Programme

The Micro-Internship Programme offers employers the opportunity to provide short voluntary learning and development opportunities to Oxford University students. Placements can last between 2-5 days and take place at the end of each academic term, in the students' vacation periods. Whilst micro-internships are voluntary and unpaid, host employers are expected to reimburse students with both local travel (inclusive of bus journeys between Oxford and London) and lunch expenses on submission of receipts for any day the student physically attends their placement.

The Crankstart Programme

Thanks to a generous donation by Sir Michael Moritz and Ms Harriet Heyman, the Crankstart Scholarship offers a programme of enhanced support to UK resident students studying for their first undergraduate degree from low-income backgrounds.

The Crankstart Internship Programme was established to enable the scholars to take advantage of this opportunity by undertaking internships or work shadowing placements with a variety of organisations offering internships exclusively to these students.

Oxford Guide to Careers

For the last fourteen years, the Careers team has written and produced an annual Oxford Guide to Careers for students, which has become our distinctive and successful platform for external partners to promote their organisations and careers directly to Oxford students.

Organisations can advertise in the Oxford Guide to Careers:

- graduate schemes
- internship schemes or work experience
- your organisation as a great place to work, even if there are no regular opportunities.

You can choose between two types of adverts in the Guide:

Adverts – full, half or quarter page and are created by your marketing or design team. You can include whatever content you choose, including images and graphics alongside logos and text.

Listings – always a quarter page, and consist of your logo and approximately 200 words of text under specified headings. These are all formatted identically by our designers. opportunities and upcoming events, and relevant Careers news.

Advertise in the information booklet for students:

How to make the most of Careers

The booklet contains an overview of the range of services, programmes, and events that Careers offers to University of Oxford students during their time at Oxford and beyond.

A few thousand copies of the booklet are printed and handed out at careers fairs and other events, and in the Careers building. The online version of the booklet is featured on the Oxford University website, Careers social media channels and sent to students via the Careers newsletter.

Sponsor Careers tote bags

Employer Engagement Network members have right of first refusal to have their logos featured on our cotton and canvas tote bags.

The aim is for our students to re-use the bags for as long as possible, so this is an opportunity for your company's name to be at the forefront of the students' minds.

The bags are primarily distributed at careers fairs.

Join the EMPLOYER ENGAGEMENT NETWORK
